

TO COOL, BLOW YOUR SAUCER

After traveling through miles and miles of nothing but miles and miles, we found the city of Roswell, NM. The population of this city is around 47,000 and is touted as the dairy center of New Mexico. The main claim to fame, however, is the crash site of an alleged UFO, and the UFO Museum documenting the same.

The museum is free of charge, but they have a myriad of items for sale, which I am sure made up for no admission.

There are enough facts along with fiction, to make one wonder if it did happen. Some very important and respected people believe in the incident.

Other than a Wal-Mart Super Center, we could find no other socially redeeming values for this city.

It is becoming quite the retirement area for the old folks, but it sure is isolated!

Our route to Decatur, TX could have been by major highways, but we elected to travel on Hwy 380 all the way. If we thought that the road to Roswell was lonely, we should have traveled this one first! We would drive for a half hour or more without a car passing us. Many of the towns that were shown on the map turned out to be abandoned with all the buildings empty of life of any kind.

This of course, took care of any kind of RV parks existing. We turned off the road into the City of Jayton. The population turned out to be 550. After a trip thru town we stopped at the Sheriff's office to see if we could park on an empty lot anyplace.

Lo and Behold, a sheriff took me in his car and showed me a city RV park with full hook ups and 8 spaces! He showed me the City Hall where I could pay Karen, the city clerk!

These small towns are something else
