

FINALLY!

August 8, 2004

We cannot believe that the day has come to hit the road this year! The same rules apply, if you don't want to receive any of these missives, please e-mail and say stop. We won't take offense.

The year started out simple enough. We took four cruises! One to the Caribbean, one to China, one to Alaska and one along the coast of Baja.

Along about time to leave for the summer, I took the rig into the shop to see about a rear end howling noise, (Under warranty). Well, this was about the 5th of July, and here on the 8th of Aug we are on the road.

The day we left it was 101 deg and after a tough days drive of 120 miles, we are spending 2 days at Soledad Canyon where it is 104!

It cools one off just to look at the picture!

Our plan is to leave tomorrow and stop and visit the Reagan Library. We have never been there.

It is our understanding that the closer to the Pacific Ocean we get, the cooler it will be. Once we arrive, we will stick to the coast like glue, all the way to British Columbia!

It was decided to stay on the West Coast this year. So far the weather on the East Coast has shown that it is the right decision.

There may not be a raft of these letters because we plan to stay longer at some spots. Maybe even put the awning out!
