WHY THE ROADS NEED REPAIR!

The sheep are eating the road!

Since leaving Prince George, BC, we have traveled to mile 0 of the Alaska Highway, then to Cache Creek, then on to Fort Nelson. The countryside was mostly farm land. Since Fort Nelson we have been easing into Rocky Mountain country.

We are starting to see our share of animals, Elk, caribou, bison, sheep, such as in the photo. They are called Stone sheep, probably for the area they are in, which is Stone Mountain.

The trip so far has been uneventful, except for rain today.

In Prince George we met a lady who noticed our Redlands sign on the motorhome. She hails from Temecula, CA. She is alone and is driving a big Monaco Diplomat diesel, towing a car. She is going to Alaska. We are traveling together until she heads for Fairbanks, and we to Valdez. This is her first time to Alaska.

We traveled today through a long construction area and picked up at least two rock hits which broke the front windows of the MH.

Tonight in Laird Hot Springs Provincial Park, we are inundated with giant mosquitoes. I suppose they are the first of many.

We have passed many RV's in tour groups heading home. For many tours these are the last for the year.
