

THE LEAFPEEPERS THREE

As they say, "Fall has Fell". We are starting to see the glorious fall colors. The farther we go east, the brighter they get. This is the only distraction we have in this isolated, unpopulated country. The majority of Canadians live within 50 to 100 miles of the border.

We share the road with big trucks. It has been quite a while since we have traveled two lane highways with oncoming semi-trucks coming at you with three feet to spare, from a head-on collision! Rough calculations figure about 500 trucks a day coming at you for 8 days. A lot of potential crashes.

Two days later we get to North Bay, which surprised us as to its size. We expected it to be a small town. The Indian statue we were looking for, was located in front of the home, and now museum, of the Dionne quintuplets. It is on a very busy intersection.

We discovered that we only had 256 miles to go to get to Hamilton, where our cousins are located.
