

6/11/2009

HAWAII WITH FIVE WOMEN

Only a madman would travel to Maui, Hawaii with five women! The Tower of Babel pales to the incessant talk of things from bunions to shirt colors. The task of unifying six people to one thought is massive!

The main point of agreement is eating! Every morning for breakfast we all have papayas. Papayas here, are as common as the flies.

We went one day to the beautiful Maui Aquarium. It is a huge underwater display of the many different types of fish found in the Hawaiian waters. They have a tunnel you walk through and you are surrounded by all the sea creatures, including sharks and sea rays. It takes a couple of hours just to get a cursory look at all the exhibits.

Lahaina Town shopping will cure most everyone's thirst. If you are still thirsty, you can proceed to the more exclusive Whalers Village, and pay more.

We spent a glorious evening at the Lelani Restaurant, overlooking the beach at Kaanapali. The eventual sunset was unforgettable.

One morning we spent time at the Maui Prince Hotel, pretending we were staying in the $450/night rooms! The hotel used to be far out of town with nothing around. The past years has housing and hotels and golf courses almost all the way to it.

Alas! it is time to take everybody to the airport to go home. We leave at three different times which requires three different trips from our condo.

Dave & Bonnie & Marti & Nancy & Vicki & Terri