THOUSAND TAILS

Holding true to our course of using all of our membership RV parks during this trip, especially our Thousand Trails Preserves, we arrived in San Leandro, CA. We needed a park that was close to the Oakland Airport, because we have been waiting for the arrival of sister Marti, who will travel with us.

We found a park that is mainly old 12 ft wide trailers, occupied with various and sundry retired, old, young, indigent, multi-racial and welfare folks! We are nestled in amongst all of this for 4 days. The most evident thing was the dozens of cats living here, hence, "Thousand Tails".

We have previously been staying at Morgan Hill Thousand Trails and then we moved to Redwood City at the home of our friends, the Harris's.

The highlight of the week was a trip to San Francisco to have dinner with grandson David and his lady friend Kerry. We got to experience a 25 minute wait to give 4 dollars to the toll taker at the Oakland Bay bridge crossing.

Other than new buildings, it didn't appear that much has changed since I used to work there for the State.

We expect to continue northward on Saturday. It is ironic that in our quest to escape the summer heat at home, that we are heading to the northwest that has endured high temperatures that have never been reached in recorded history!
