RUNNIN' WITH THE YOOPERS!

North we go! Passing by cement, yard ornament business called Bird Bath and Beyond, we aimed for the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. The evening brought us a storm with high winds, which lasted until the next day, so we extended our camp for another night. As it turned out the Mackinac Bridge was closed for a few hours due to the high winds, (over 30 mph) anyway.

Residents of the Upper Peninsula (UP) proudly go by the name Yoopers! They even talk about succeeding from Michigan!

The US2 highway we will follow starts west, just after crossing the bridge. It passed right thru Wakefield, MI, which has the first Peter Toth Indian statue we saw. Now we have come full circle after 6 years of statue finding!
