A TOUGH JOB

As in exercising, one must ease into travel as we get older. We chose the Big Island of Hawaii to warm up. Like I say, it's a tough job, but somebody has to do it!

Sister Marti & Sister Nancy accompanied us to Hawaii to share our condo, in Kailua Kona.

After deciding what to see and do here, we ventured out to see the Hilton Waikoloa Village. This is a huge property with a train to take you to your room! Or a boat which travels beside the train tracks.

They have several large waterfalls and a dolphin pool where you can swim with the dolphins.

We have done many things so far such as getting a hot dog at Costco! etc.

Marti and Nancy took an airplane ride around the island. It was surprising that there is currently no visible lava flows. It may possibly be flowing thru underground tubes to the ocean and we cannot see it

We are staying at a very nice Wyndham Condo. Two bedrooms and two baths. We have a view of the ocean from our patio.

Yesterday we ate lunch at Bubba Gumps, on the waterfront. They said that the whole town was evacuated for the tsunami. The water came over the stone wall of the restaurant, and flooded the rooms, pushing all the chairs and tables and stuff to the back wall. They were able to put all the stuff back in place and open the next day.
