

THE SHORT ROAD HOME

It had been a long day so we stopped at Nephi, UT for the night. The next day we drove to our usual stop at Kanarraville, UT where we heard that the big rain had washed out IS 15. We took a chance the next morning and hoped they would have a bypass by the time we got there. On the way they announced the road was open again. You can see what the damage was in the photo.

We decided to delay arriving home, to go to a rally in Chula

Vista, CA while we were still in the travel mode. We stayed the extra nights in a Thousand Trails park, it was a good rally and we left for HOME!

For those interested in statistics, the following:

Gone for 79 days

Average per day $60

Miles traveled 4001

MPG 7.8

We spent a lot more time this year doing what we do at home.

Setting in our chairs watching TV and eating, but with a different view out the windows. Maybe we can make another year!
