

GOING “NORTHER”

We left the town of Seaside in the dust, and crossed the mighty Columbia River at Astoria OR. The bridge is still intimidating after having crossed it many times in the past.

Our next goal was a Thousand Trails Camp in Oceana, WA. We have been here before, however this time the camp had only 28 or so sites open.

The majority of campsites were past an old wooden bridge that crossed a stream. It was blocked off!. The Ranger said the bridge was 50 years old and could not handle heavy RV's any more. The Fish and Game department is prohibiting any repairs until Salmon run season is over. This, even though no Salmon have run in the creek for 7 years!
Oh Well!

If you want to have lunch in the belly of a shark, walk right in.

After a few days here we are off to Olympia and the driveway of our friends, the Euckers.

The weather has been wonderful, and cool in the mornings. Heater on time for us California sissies.
