Do We Know Pikes Market!

Last night at the park was nice and quiet. The first thing on the agenda today was to find a Comp USA to get this printer for printing the letter you all are reading!

Then we left for Seattle to battle the Working Class and the Tourist crowd at Pikes Market.

We had some good seafood and Clam chowder at Ivars on the waterfront and then went thru Pikes.

We came back to the park at 3:00 and waited for Elaine to come over.

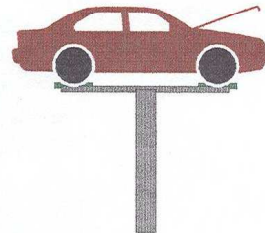

She did , and then we went with her to see their place which was only a couple of miles down the road. They have a lovely place in a gated community of mobile homes.

Dinner at ours? No, Yours, yes!

We met George at the house and then came back to the MH for dinner.

It turned out that they invited us to bring the meal over to their house which turned out to be the best deal.

It started raining real hard and we stayed dry while BBQ ing.

When we came home from Pikes, we heard a knocking sound from the front of the car. So far we have made an appointment with Honda to repair a CV joint on Wed AM which puts us one more day here.
