CAMPING WITH A 45 RV TOUR

Our intention today is to drive to Fort Nelson. A big 110 miles!

The road was beautifully boring. It was broken by some construction for 8 or so miles, mixed with loose dusty gravel. I hope we don't have too much of this.

The road has signs warning of moose, cariboo, and elk crossing the road. We decided they were just to keep the tourists hopes up.

HI HO, ITS OFF TO WORK WE GO

ELK CROSSING

We are always looking for them. We spotted a small dot a way down the road and it was a moose or something. It was gone by the time we went by.

THE SANDS OF TIME PASS SLOWLY

The town of Fort Nelson is large by country standards. We are in a pay RV Park tonight. We plan to be in Provincial Parks the next 4 or 5 nights. Today it is quite warm, no clouds. Tomorrow, who knows!

We went thru a very interesting museum in town and watched a film on how they built the Alaska Highway during the war. The museum had many relics on display unfortunately some of which we are still using at home!

TOMORROW ARE BIG MOUNTAINS!
